*Mindfulness and Art...Love life and it will love your back. A. Rubinstein

Neuroscience is teaching us that positive experiences can change the architecture of our brains. Through this we improve the health of our body, then enhance our ability to create.

As an artist I have discovered that a cluttered mind, anxiety and mood, can halt my creative process. I have studied MINDFULNESS and MEDITATION, as well as painting, which has improved my memory, as well as my ability to relax, which then enhances our total life. Our communication and coping skills improve which brings light into our days as we improve relationships on many levels. Numerous people have taken this class and found a new way to see life and their ability to create with confidence. We have so many gifts inside of our soul but we must learn how to nurture those talents, to express our frustrations and learn to love ourselves ...once we can accomplish this; the compassion and love radiates within us and it is shared with others.

By Rumi; Your task is not to seek for love but merely to seek and find all of the barriers within yourself that you have built against it.

As we reflect upon our childhood gifts of self expression and joy, let us turn to the open honest gift we used to express our thoughts and feelings.

Use any materials you choose and express yourself among a small group that enjoys life and art.

I am a Registered Art Therapist, Psychodramatist and Artist. My education has given me the ability to work with people experiencing the challenge of memory loss, anxiety, depression, creative blocks, etc. Painting can bring much pleasure especially when done in a small group of compassionate individuals who seek the beauty life can bring.

We use music and meditation to assist with your ability to create.

Join us and discover the you inside that has been hidden.
